The attached are estimates of the total population of counties in Texas by age, sex and race/ethnicity for July 1, 1987 completed by personnel in the Department of Rural Sociology in the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Texas A&M University under contract to the Texas State Data Center in the Texas Department of Commerce. The total population estimates which are used as the base for these estimates were reviewed in provisional form by a network of reviewers from across the State, and where appropriate, changes were made in the provisional estimates prior to the release of the final estimates of total population shown here.

The methodology used to prepare the estimates of the age, sex and racial/ethnic composition of the estimated population in each county in Texas is described in this writeup. Due to space limitations, only a brief description of the methodology is presented. Those wishing more detailed information on the methodology should contact program personnel in the Department of Rural Sociology at Texas A&M.

Methodology

To derive estimates of age, sex and race/ethnic detail from the estimates of the total population for counties for July 1, 1987, a procedure was used to first project, from the 1980 base population, the proportion of the population expected to be in each age, sex and racial/ethnic group in each county as of July 1, 1987. These proportions were then multiplied by the estimate of total population for the county for July 1, 1987 and the resulting estimates of the sum in all age, sex and racial/ethnic groups controlled to the total for the county estimate of total population for July 1, 1987.

The estimation of the proportion of persons who were in each age, sex and racial/ethnic group was obtained by projecting the 1980 population of each county by age, sex and race/ethnicity forward to July 1, 1987. The 1980 base populations by age and sex for each race and ethnic group were determined by subtracting the Spanish-origin population by age, sex and race for 1980 from the White, Black and Other population groups for 1980. The racial/ethnic groups of Anglo, Black, Spanish origin, and Other are thus mutually exclusive categories, and the sum of these groups across all categories is equal to the total population. Single-year age categories are presented for ages 0-74, while the terminal age category is 75+.

In several counties, it was necessary to adjust the 1980 base population to take into account large institutional populations (e.g., junior colleges, universities, etc.). Unless such institutional populations are removed from the base population, the projected population will have a distorted age distribution. To make this adjustment, the number of persons by age, sex and race/ethnicity in the institutional population in 1980 was subtracted from the corresponding age, sex and racial/ethnic cohort for each county for 1980. The remaining 1980 base population was then aged using standard cohort-component techniques as described below. The institutional population by age, sex and racial/ethnic cohort as of July 1, 1987 was then added to the projected (base) population for July 1, 1987 to obtain the total population by cohort as of July 1, 1987. Institutional populations for 1980 and 1987 were obtained from the respective agencies responsible for such populations (e.g., the State Coordinating Board for Colleges and Universities, Texas Department of Corrections, etc.). The counties for which such procedures were used included those for which the institutional population exceeded 2 percent of the total population in 1980.

The estimate of population by age and sex for each racial/ethnic group was made using projections of the population as of July 1, 1987. The July 1, 1987 projections were obtained by using standard cohort-component techniques with single years of age, sex and racial/ethnic cohorts and assumptions related to 1980-87 rates of mortality, fertility and net migration for each cohort. Mortality was estimated by assuming that 1980 survival rates by age, sex, and race/ethnicity for the State would apply to all counties and follow national trends in mortality change from 1980-87. These survival rates were derived from 1979-81 life tables computed from mortality data from the Texas Department of Health. Survival rates were computed from these data for White, Black and Spanish-origin racial/ethnic groups, and rates for Whites were assumed to apply to Anglos and to the Other racial/ethnic category in making the estimates. For fertility, age-specific fertility rates were computed from 1979-81 birth data from the Texas Department of Health, with White rates being assumed to apply to Anglos and to the Other racial/ethnic category. For migration, the base rates used were obtained from the Texas State Data Center publication, entitled Net Migration in Texas: 1970-1980 by Age and Sex for Whites and Nonwhites. The rates in this volume were converted from ten-year rates for five-year cohorts to single-year rates for single-year-of-age cohorts using appropriate averaging and interpolation techniques. Migration rates for Whites were assumed to apply to Anglos and the Other racial/ethnic category, and rates for Blacks were assumed to apply to the Black population. During the preparation of the 1987 estimates and related population projections, 1970-80 net migration rates for persons of Spanish origin were developed. These rates were used for the first time in the preparation of these 1987 estimates.

Survival, fertility and migration rates for each racial/ethnic group were assumed to vary over time such that alternative assumptions were used in the projections for fertility and migration. For survival and fertility rates, age, sex and race/ethnicity specific rates for each county were ratioed to the age, sex and race/ethnicity specific rates for the United States in 1980. The patterns of mortality and fertility from 1980-87 were assumed to follow the trend in rates projected by the U.S. Bureau of the Census in Projections of the Population of the United States by Age, Sex and Race, 1983-2080 (P-25, No. 952), and Projections of the Hispanic Population: 1983-2080 (P-25, No. 995). These rates result in total fertility rates that trend toward 1.6, 1.9 and 2.3 over the course of the projection period. For mortality, levels of survival that reflect the middle-range mortality assumption for the Nation were employed. To obtain fertility rates for Texas counties, the ratios computed between each county's and the U.S. age-race specific fertility rates for 1980 were applied to the projected U.S. rates for 1987 under the 1.6, 1.9 and 2.3 assumptions, to obtain projections of fertility for each county that followed the general national trend in fertility toward total fertility rates of 1.6, 1.9 and 2.3. No closure in racial/ethnic differentials nor in county-to-U.S. differentials in fertility were assumed to have occurred from 1980-87. For mortality, 1980 county/national ratios were computed for the rates for each age, sex and racial/ethnic group and ratioed to the national middle-range mortality scenario to obtain a single set of mortality rates for each county for 1980-87.

For migration, assumptions related to 1980-87 rates of migration were more problematic, since projections of age, sex and race/ethnicity specific migration rates were not available for 1980-87. Rather, an examination of recent total migration rates in the State suggested that rates of migration among counties during the 1980s have varied widely but could be characterized by rates that were similar to the 1970s as well as by rates that were less than those for the 1970s. Thus, four alternative assumptions were made to simulate the variation in migration rates from 1980-87. These assumptions were that rates would remain at the 1970-80 level, or that they would be 0.75 or 0.50 of the 1970-80 rate, or that they would be 0.0, indicating population change due only to natural increase. The implementation of these assumptions in the estimates involved multiplying each of the age, sex and race/ethnicity specific 1970-80 migration rates for each county (after they had been converted to single-year and single-year-of-age groupings) by 1.0, 0.75, 0.50, and 0.0 respectively.

The use of one set of assumptions for mortality, three fertility assumptions and four migration assumptions resulted in twelve separate projection scenarios that represented the combination of these assumptions. The total populations projected in each of these scenarios for each county were compared to the July 1, 1987 estimate of total population for each county, and the scenario producing the projection of total population for July 1, 1987 that was closest to the July 1, 1987 estimate of the total population for each county was used to estimate the proportion of the total population that would be in each age, sex and race/ethnicity specific cohort in each county. The proportion of the total population in each age, sex and racial/ethnic group for the selected scenario was then multiplied by the total population estimate for July 1, 1987 to obtain the estimate of population by age, sex and race/ethnicity for July 1, 1987 for each county.

Comparisons to Other Estimates

The estimates presented here may differ from those available from other sources due to differences in both assumptions and estimation techniques. For example, the values reported here differ from those recently published by the U.S. Bureau of the Census (P-25, No. 1024) because of differences in methodologies and because the Census Bureau's estimates of age were based on a preliminary estimate of a total State population of 16,789,000 for July 1, 1987 rather than the 16,784,886 estimate for Texas used as the State control total for these estimates (the Census Bureau subsequently revised the estimate to 16,785,000 in P-26, No. 87). These estimates also differ somewhat from those available from the Texas Department of Health due to differences in assumptions and the fact that data available from that agency for post-1980 periods are, in fact, projections rather than estimates. Similarly, differences are likely to be evident when comparing these estimates to those available from other sources. Users should thus be careful to compare both the assumptions and methodologies underlying different estimates when comparing estimates from different sources.
